RUNAWAY MAIL TRUCK. Brakes slipped on this local mail truck Monday morning, causing the damage pictured here.

James P. Greenlund, 318 Prospect st., had parked the vehicle near the top of Parker st. to make a delivery when it slipped away and struck the porch of the William Oelslager home.

The driver suffered minor cuts and bruises.

DOWN AND SAFE. This large tree in front of Dr. William Walter's residence at the corner of Fourth ave. and Liberty st. is now down and safe.

In the trimming process last Thursday a branch of the tree was cut loose as R. E. Rath, R. D. 2, Warren, stopped for a traffic light, and a $75 dent in the hood of the car resulted.

Removal of the old tree Saturday was undoubtedly wise, as during a severe storm last year a second tree was toppled onto a new convertible operated by Frank Nichols. The driver miraculously escaped injury.

CANCER TAG DAYS. Arville Ittel (l.) president of the Business and Professional Women's Club, and Sara Jayne Hartman, club Cancer chairman, distributed cans and tags to Y-Teens for Cancer Tag days in Warren over the past week end.

Among the girls selling were (l. to r.) Bonnie Brindis, Barbara Gorton, Cecelia Smith, Susan Bollinger, Joanne Waples and Judy Manchester.

REV. J. EDWARD LILJA

St. John's Evangelical Lutheran Church in Pleasant Township will take part in the Northeast conference of the Pittsburgh Synod Area Evangelism Mission from May 5 to 10, with the Rev. J. Edward Lilja of Rockwood, Pa., as the guest missioner.

IN AN EFFORT to raise money for a trip to Philadelphia this summer, Girl Scouts of Troop 101 will hold a bazaar from 9 a.m. until 8 p.m. Friday, May 10, at the little house on Pennsylvania ave. next to Manufacturers Light and Heat office.

There will be better used clothing, rummage, baked goods and new hand-made gift items for sale. Girls of the troop working on some of the items at a Monday afternoon session in Trinity Memorial Church were (l. to r.) Gale Barone, Peggy Holt, Susie Blackman, Jane Ensworth, Barbara Dashem, Ann Lewis. Mrs. Helene McClure is the leader pictured. ➤

The services will be held beginning Sunday morning at 9:30 a.m. and will continue each evening at 8 p.m. from Sunday through Thursday. On Friday evening at 8 o'clock there will be a closing rally at First Lutheran Church with the Rev. H. Reed Sheper, D.D., pastor of Luther Memorial Church in Erie, as preacher.

The public is cordially invited to take part in these Mission Week services.

Civil Rights Stalled

By Doris Fleeson

WASHINGTON. -- The relatively small group of Senators which has strong convictions against civil rights has again demonstrated its easy mastery of the legislative situation.

It furnished the votes in the Judiciary Committee to load the current civil rights bill with amendments fully as controversial as the bill itself. Then it voted to make the amended bill the pending business.

This is brutal and cynical politics. But it must be said for the civil rights opposition that it has the courage of its depravity. Its efforts in aid of nullification of the Supreme Court's anti-segregation decision are open, positive and direct. It is not saying one thing and doing another, nor is it talking but not acting.

Its successes are built on the failure of the supposed support for civil rights to offer equally as determined and resourceful a campaign in its behalf.

That support is, in theory, a majority. It includes President Eisenhower and Vice-President Richard M. Nixon. In the House and Senate, a majority of both Democrats and Republicans speak well of civil rights. The party platforms demand action. Republican Senate leader William F. Knowland is supposed to be for it; Democratic Senate leader Lyndon B. Johnson says it's inevitable.

From no quarter of this wide circle comes a damn-the-consequences demand for a fight to enact a meaningful civil rights bill. Such a fight would advertise party divisions on both sides. It would be wearing on the Senators individually, and it would be so time-consuming as to prolong this off-year session into the hottest weeks of summer.

Nobody now expects it to take place. Before the mid-term elections next fall, the issue will be revived. It certainly will be revived before 1960 by forces led by Vice-President Nixon, who has so plainly turned toward the pivotal states and their crucial minorities.

The Judiciary Committee voted its civil rights millstones just as the small band of dedicated advocates of civil rights were trying to arouse support for discharge petitions to bring the bill to the floor. This group is about the same size in numbers as the die-hard antis, but it is neither so influential nor so strategically placed.

The reason is simple. The one-party South sends the same elected representatives back to Washington again and again, so they acquire all-important seniority. In the states from which the political liberals come, the election contests are always brisk and few members achieve prolonged tenures and positions of leadership.

Nonetheless, few politicians would vote against a civil rights bill that reached a roll call. To avoid that roll call is the constant preoccupation of the antis. The present distaste of all political leadership in Washington for bruising controversy serves them well.

MISS VILUMIN BENEDICTO

Miss Vilumin Benedicto, of La-Carlota, Phillipine Islands, has been selected as Warren High school's exchange student for 1957-58. The plans and arrangements to bring a foreign student here were made by the student council in cooperation with the American Field Service in New York City.

Miss Benedicto will arrive here on August 6 and reside at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Richard Ross, North Warren.

MRS. JAMES ANTHONY ROCK

A double ring ceremony performed in the Shadyside Presbyterian Church in Pittsburgh April 25th united in marriage Margaret Jane Crawford, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John Campbell Crawford of Mt. Pleasant, and Dr. James Anthony Rock, son of Mr. and Mrs. Anthony Rock of North Warren.

The bride is a graduate of Western Pennsylvania Hospital School of Nursing and is presently engaged as supervisor of the obstetrical department of the hospital. Mr. Rock graduated from the University of Pittsburgh School of Medicine and is now completing his internship at St. Francis Hospital. In July he will begin special training in pathology at the University of Pittsburgh Medical Center.

THE OLD SLATE ROOF on the Warren Bank and Trust building clock tower, which was originally placed there in the late 1880's, is now in the process of being replaced by a copper roof.

In order to eliminate complicated scaffolding, the clock dials in the tower were removed to permit the set-up pictured here. In the meantime the dials are being renovated.

The job is expected to be completed in less than two weeks.

King Keystone has the roofing contract.

REV. HERMAN J. SCHMID

The Rev. Herman J. Schmid, S.T.M., pastor of the Bethlehem Evangelical Lutheran Church, Glenshaw, Pa., will be guest missioner at the First Lutheran Church during the Lutheran Evangelism Mission Week, May 5 through 10.

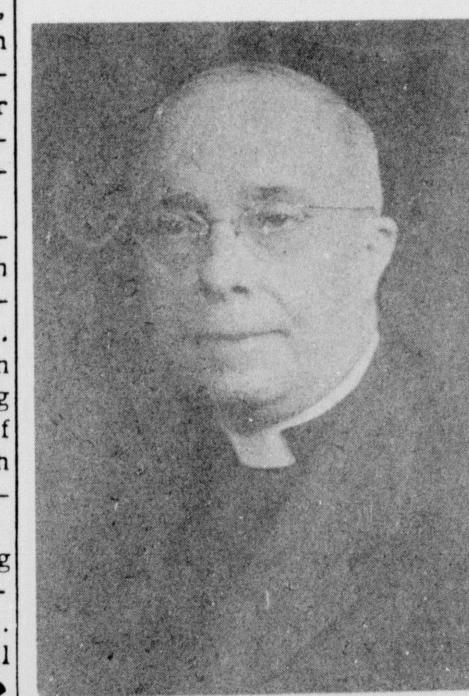

Mission services will begin Sunday morning at eight o'clock with the Rev. Schmid bringing the message at the communion service. He will speak again at the main service at eleven. Sunday evening at 8 o'clock will be the first of the evening mission services, which will take place each evening during the week of May 5th.

On Friday, May 10, the closing rally will be held at First Lutheran for Northwest area churches. Dr. H. Reed Sheper, of Erie, will speak at this time.

ACTING ASSESSOR. Jack Nicholson, of Warren, took over the duties of acting chief assessor of Warren County on Wednesday. He is serving in the absence of Frank Miller, who is recovering from an illness.

The new assessor is a graduate of Warren high school in the class of 1950, served with the U. S. Air Force during 1954-56, and studied engineering at the Pennsylvania State University for one and one-half years.

SILLY DAMAGE. In that South Carver st. has a 20 inch sewer coming off the hill into a 16 inch sewer should be bad enough, but last year's resurfacing project topped it off.

While bettering the street the manhole in the first block was covered over, and so good that when last Thursday's downpour arrived the water had only the choice to undermining the surface instead of taking its usual course of pushing off the manhole top.

This is a typical view of how the blacktop was forced up the sides of the curbs in several locations. The manhole has now been freed, but what will be done to the street has not yet been decided.

EDUCATION TOMORROW

The Warren area high school which now is being planned must be constructed with far more in mind than the number of pupils it will accommodate in the foreseeable future. This we know will reach close to 1500 at the present rate of expansion the area is enjoying. But that is only a part of the picture.

A special message addressed to the state assembly by Governor Leader last week revealed a major share of what we have in mind. It puts on the line the very possibility of which we spoke in a column on March 21, 1957. At that time we emphasized the need for junior colleges and the fact that many modern high schools will provide that portion of the educational program through night classes. This will be profitable in that it will pay for itself and will give your better teachers additional work in their own line.

Now the governor comes forth with a tangible proposal that he would have included in present budget plans. This includes state help for those who find higher education a financial impossibility, and state funds for communities which provide junior college classes for area students. Both would be financed by a one cent excise tax on soft drinks and a half cent per ounce tax on soft drink syrups. This would yield $35,000,000 a year.

We are not supporting or approving the specific program Governor Leader has proposed. But we suggest that it reveals we have tomorrow already with us and we haven't laid our first stone. The governor's idea we are sure is not his own. It certainly is based on the thinking of progressive educators who see the shape of things to come and are working to keep this state apace with others.

The state is not telling the high schools to do this. It is a voluntary program. But it is obvious to us that Warren as a county seat may find itself in a natural position for such a service, and should build its school in a way that will make it possible to handle such classes, and to be expanded for additional rooms which may be required for higher education at a later date.

The junior college program in Pennsylvania is expected to have a student body of about 20,000 young people in a very few years. Today, nearly half our young people leave college before they complete their sophomore year. Some find they cannot make it financially, and others discover they don't want to complete college. Either one would have saved much money if they could have attended two years of junior college night classes in their own town or county.

By removing this load from the colleges which today are bulging with students, we would allow those schools to give their juniors and seniors, plus the smaller freshman and sophomore classes, much more attention. The quality of education obviously would improve.

Any future expansion required for such educational facilities by local schools will be assisted by the state on a reimbursement standard similar to the one now being used. This is the governor's proposal and if it is stalled until a later date we are confident that the demand will be sufficient to force future state officials to follow a similar course.

The specific cost of operating junior college classes in a high school today is about $500 a student. The program proposed would reimburse the local school $200 per student. Tuitions would pay the rest. This means that a boy or girl could live at home, work during the day, and get past his freshman and sophomore years at a cost of about $300 a year.

WRONG APPROACH
Too much of our educational opportunity today is based on ability to pay rather than our ability to learn. Governor Leader suggests we remedy this by establishing a scholarship program which will award 5,000 scholarships a year, ranging from $200 to $800. Students could enter the school of their choice and the scholarships would be awarded on the basis of examinations held in the high school senior year.

In addition to the scholarships the governor proposed a student loan program. For this about $1,500,000 would be appropriated the first year and the loans would be made under rules and regulations adopted by the State Council of Higher Education. Scholastic ability and need would combine to provide the basis for a loan.

Leaders throughout the nation realize that our greatest need as a country that wants to stay alive is education. Whether we adopt Governor Leader's program of the moment, revise it to a watered down state, or wait for the next governor to act, it is a fact we must face while building a high school. If our state is alert and can set politics aside, the forward step is here. If we must hedge a bit, it will be here in another two or four years.

It won't go backwards. It will grow, and we must grow with it. For that reason we must build accordingly. We must build an expandable school. And certainly we must build on an area that allows for such expansion. We should not attempt to foresee the complete expansion picture of tomorrow. Land is our cheapest investment and we should buy enough of it to more than accommodate any need we can today imagine.

But even today, in our present building plans, we must think big so that facilities we now provide will do more than serve 1500 high school upper classmen.

Conservatively speaking we believe we may want to have science and technical facilities to handle approximately one hundred advanced students in our new high school. If we don't allow some kind of cushion such as this at the very start we will be out of date the day we open our doors. Our figures are far from professional. Leaders in this field should be consulted.

The important step is to consult them and to accept their suggestions. Tomorrow is today when you are spending over two million dollars on educational facilities.

HOME SHORTAGE SOLUTION

If your housing problem of the moment would be solved by owning a four-room cottage with bath and plenty of cupboard space, including such modern conveniences as an automatic washer and drier combination, and at a price that will range between $4,000 and $6,000, we have an easy answer.

Or maybe you have a lot in mind down along the river or on one of our mountaintops, where you would like to have a summer home or a country spot to spend much of your time in peaceful quiet. Would a cottage of the size we just mentioned, for about $5,000, do the job?

The answer we have in mind is not on paper, requiring a contractor and months of lining up material. It isn't stored away in sections to be assembled by you or by willing hands at a price. Our idea is as simple as saying, "That is where I want it." And there it will be.

If you doubt us, take a little spin one of these pleasant evenings and spend an hour or two looking at the new mobile homes. They are a long way from those trailers of a few years ago. Neatly done, well assembled, and very convenient.

We know of two places near Warren where quite a fleet of them can be seen. One is Al Aquist's place near Starbrick. The other is Jack Lott's at Venturetown. Whether you buy or not, stop and have a look. We think you will be amazed.

The best ones we saw on a recent round of these places were ten feet wide and forty-five feet long. Most of them had a living room in the front where you enter. Then a kitchen, well supplied with cupboards, a better sink than seen in most homes, a refrigerator, electric washer, and a ventilator.

Next would come a neat little bedroom, then a bath (including a shower), and at the end another bedroom. Slide doors move smoothly on bearings to close many closets and to shut off rooms. The heat is provided by anything you want, depending on your location, and is forced through the floors to the various rooms.

The outer portions are made of aluminum to prevent rust. There is insulation in the walls, ceilings, and floors, wall to wall carpeting, appropriate furniture (including a davenport that will open up to serve as a third bed), and either double glass or thermoglass in the large picture windows.

Some have their windows augmented by ventilation windows which open their wings easily at the turn of a small handle. And special steps can be bought to give the doorways a house-like appearance.

Some of the paneling is very neat and well done. Others are not so well finished. But all are of a nature that make it easy for anyone at all handy with tools to build additional shelving, break-walls, or bookshelves to match the background.

If you do not need two bedrooms, one can be changed to a sewing room, or a study, or a store room. The davenport can accommodate the guests.

Housekeeping is made simple. No steps to climb. Little space to clean. Everything is compact and convenient.

And if you want it to be a permanent location you can hook up to the local sewers, gas, and electricity, put a cinder-block foundation under the walls and you are at home. And in fact you still can change your mind by unhooking everything and moving to a new location.

Not only that your new cottage will have trade-in value if you change your tastes, or you can sell it at a fair price if you decide it's not for you. And in a permanent location there is no reason why you can't add a room or two if you want space for storage or more family.

EXTRA CLOSET

There is one little trick you might try if you need a bit more closet space in your home, or in one of those mobile cottages. Build a four to six-inch closet and place it on the back of a door. It will not prevent the door from opening sufficiently to allow free traffic, and on sliding doors you can make them as large as space allows.

KEEP CLEAN ON THE ROAD

If hand wash cloths would be useful to you while traveling on a train or stopping at hotels, cut a worn turkish towel into eight squares. Discard them as you use them up.

IS YOUR HOME SAFELY WIRED?

The minimum for today's electrical living is a 100-ampere electric service entrance providing 24,000 watts, says a Penn State specialist. At least three branch circuits are needed in the kitchen and dining areas, in addition to those for the individual appliances. A minimum of five circuits should cover the rest of the house.

TOBACCO SPOILS PLANTS

Maybe those who are testing tobacco as a possible irritant or maybe a cause of cancer, might find something interesting in the fact that you should not use tobacco while working with tomato plants. Most tobacco contains a virus which causes mosaic on tomatoes. It does the same to some flowers and other vegetables.

Warren Sewage Plant
Plans Are Discussed

Preliminary plans relative to the construction of a $1,500,000 sewage plant for Warren were discussed by the Warren Borough Sanitary Authority members and the Warren borough council sanitary facilities commission when they met Monday night. The Chester Engineers of Pittsburgh, who have been employed for many years to keep plans for the plant up to date, were authorized to commence a study of the rate charges for sewage rentals.

Robert Kopf was named chairman of the authority, and Albert Rasmussen vice chairman. Other members are W. Floyd Clinger, Clare J. Crary, and Robert Dunham. S. Knox Harper has been named attorney for the authority and the bond counsel is the firm of Kirkpatrick, Pomeroy, Lockhart, and Johnson.

The plans already have been approved by the state and now await approval by the federal government. This will provide $250,000 toward the cost. Bonds will be floated by the authority and will be paid off by some kind of sewage rental.

The most efficient kind of rental is based on the water bill, but Warren does not own its waterplant and this might prove unwieldy. Some communities base the rental on the building size, number of fixtures, number of rooms, number of sewer connections, and other measures.

Though much of the Warren sewer system was laid with the help of federal funds and land has been bought for the plant and the pumps, there is little doubt that Warren will have to spend more than is required for a plant. Many areas of Warren have no storm sewers, and the size of the plant will be determined by the volume it must accommodate. Storm sewers in such areas as the West side would provide better drainage in those areas and would reduce the volume in the sanitary sewers.

There also are some very inadequate sewers in Warren. They already are inadequate and with the potential growth that can be foreseen are destined to be even more so.

When rental is based on the metered flow of water, the assessment is a percentage of the water bill. This ranges from ten per cent to sixty per cent in various communities. Some charge a flat annual rate plus a percentage of the water bill.

Where rental is based in fixtures the annual bill averages about $2.50 per toilet, $2 for baths, $2 for sinks, $1.25 for basins, $1.50 for shower baths, $1 for drinking fountains, $10 for bar drains, and similar figures for other types. Laundries often are charged from $20 to $50 per machine, and hospitals may be billed as much as $100.

Communities which base their bills on the number of rooms will range from as little as $7 a year to as much as $25 for a six room house.

Everyone must pay. If they refuse to hook up to the sewer the borough may give them forty-five days to do so. If the connection is not made the borough can do it and charge the owner the cost. Payments are enforced in many ways but the most effective is by lien.

AUDITOR'S REPORT IS NOT APPROVED BY WARREN COUNTY COMMISSIONERS

Ten exceptions to the report of the Warren county auditors and the auditors' advertised report in the Warren Times Mirror have been filed with the Warren county court by the three Warren county commissioners, Blain M. Mead, Lewis L. Crippen, and L. L. Johnson. The exceptions are taken to various items which the commissioners claim are not properly stated and itemized in accordance with the Act of the General Assembly, the Act of August 9, 1955, P. L. 323, Section 1721, as amended and supplemented February 10, 1956, P. L. (1955) 1039, Section 1.

Exceptions are taken to accounts of the prothonotary, register and recorder, and the county treasurer. The county treasurer exceptions involve the accounting of fees earned by past register and recorders, the sheriff's miscellaneous account, and the district attorney's salary and expenses.

Despite newspaper accounts that have made the exceptions appear sensational, they are far from that at the present time. The county commissioners simply have asked for a more complete itemization of various accounts, as is their right. At this stage it involves no one but the auditors who probably will be asked by the court to file their answer by a specified date.

One misconception that was given publicity by another medium is that the auditors are providing a condensed report to save money. Actually the condensed version was only for newspaper publication purposes to save legal printing costs. The commissioners as the administrative body of the county must have a right to a complete itemization of all expenditures and receipts.

The next action in the case will be taken by Judge Alexander C. Flick presiding judge of the Warren county court of common pleas. He probably will set a date for further legal procedures.

ON HAND TO OBSERVE the shooting of the Pratt well April 19th were (l. to r.) Pierce Tomlin of Shenandoah, youngsters Terry Pearson and Theodore Bailey, well owner James Pratt, of Starbrick, and William Larsen, also of Starbrick.

The well is approximately 1000 feet deep and marks the 30th producing well now in operation by Mr. Pratt.

Mr. Hunter of the Pringle Powder Co. in Bradford was the shooter, the driller was Louis Smith, Clair Wilcox was contractor, and the tool dresser was Leonard Billman, all three of Warren.

Last week's edition carried this same picture (along with the actual shooting), but a wrong caption was accidentally used.

WOW! Congratulations to Patty Giancotti, former Observer staff member, on her recent catch of this 100 pound ocean bass off Clearwater Beach, Fla., in the Gulf of Mexico.

To make it more thrilling for the young lady, it was the first time she had even made a fishing adventure.

Miss Giancotti, who has been living in Florida since the first of the year, is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. S. B. Giancotti, 16 S. Carver St., Warren.

In Brief

SENTENCED. Three sentences were handed down to persons charged with driving while under the influence of intoxicating beverages at quarter sessions court at the Warren County Court House Friday. Sentenced were Dan Cornish, who was ordered to pay costs, fined $100 and sentenced to three days in jail; Joseph H. Eckstrom, costs, $150, three days; and Leroy Hiltz, costs, $100, seven days.

FOUR ACCIDENTS OCCURRED in Warren Borough the latter part of last week. The first was at 6:54 p. m. Thursday at the intersection of Fifth ave. and Market st., where L. G. Snavely, Pleasant twp., struck the side of a vehicle operated by Francis G. Font, 27 Glade ave. Both claimed the green light. Only minor damage was caused.

At 2:20 p. m. Friday on the 1000 block of Pennsylvania ave., E., Paul F. Kiernan, Revere Hotel, side-swiped a parked car owned by George B. Gardner, R. D. 1, Clarendon.

Gardner pursued the other operator and stopped him at the intersection of Pennsylvania ave. and Crescent st. as police arrived. Only $75 damage resulted.

A pair of parked cars were slammed into at 12:18 a. m. Friday in the 700 block of Pennsylvania ave., W., by Orrie Beebe, Fifth ave. ext. According to reports the operator had fallen asleep at the wheel when he struck autos belonging to William Lindquist, Johnsonburg, and Roger C. Mathis, R. D. 1, Clarendon. Over $1000 damage was inflicted.

At the intersection of Conewango and Pennsylvania avenues at 11:15 p. m. Saturday the borough police car, operated by Wilford E. Hewitt, 15 Myrtle st., struck the rear end of a vehicle operated by Charles D. O'Connor, 18 Conewango ave. The latter had stopped for the traffic light when he was struck. About $220 damage was caused.

PLAN CAMPAIGN. The fund raising committee of the Warren Youth Canteen steering committee met Tuesday evening to consider plans for the forthcoming "Spot" fund raising campaign to refurbish and remodel the local recreation center. Local architects Lawrence Beyer and Richard McCarthy, stated after a study of the building that an expenditure of $10,000 would be necessary.

Committee chairman Bill Lundahl reminded the group this expenditure would provide the youth of Warren with a down-town entertainment center for many years to come.

Tentative plans were made to precede the kick-off, scheduled for May 15, with mail solicitations of parents, local industries and community and service organizations.

The Warren Kiwanis Club, represented on the committee by Joseph Passaro and Andy Yurick, announced it would make a substantial contribution to start the drive off. Others working on the campaign are Mrs. Lee Schaeffer, Frank Chiodo, Jim Francis, John Stachowiak.

ROLL 'EM OVER. A pair of lone-car accidents occurred Tuesday on Warren County highways.

The first was at 3:45 p. m. on Route 6 near Ludlow where Hugh Rockwell, of Sheffield, lost control of his auto and rolled it over. About $250 damage was caused.

Approximately $2500 resulted at 10:45 p. m. the same night one mile north of Tidioute on Route 62. At this time, Russell Lynch, R. D. 1, Tidioute, also lost control and put his vehicle on its top.

Another major mishap took place south of Sugar Grove on Route 27 last Saturday, when John Crowl, R. D. 2, Sugar Grove made a bad pass. He was attempting to get past a car driven by Arthur Engstrom, also of R. D. 2, Sugar Grove, and was squeezed by an oncoming auto operated by F. Thornton Peterson, Jamestown, N. Y. About $1400 damage was caused in the accident, but no one was injured.

SIXTEEN GRADUATES were honored at the graduation exercises for the school on criminal law and procedure sponsored by the Warren and Forest County Minor Judiciary association last Thursday.

Attorney Samuel F. Bonavita was the instructor and presented certificates to Donnell Allen, Jr., Donnell Allen, Sr., Theodore Althouse, Frederick A. Berry, Robert Jury, Perry K. Mead, Lois P. Nobbs, C. O. Perrigo, Clayton L. Rhoades, Vincent F. Sprague, J. Regis Thompson, W. E. Weatherby, A. C. Western, Nathan D. Whitford, Chester Wroblewski and Casper Zinger.

NEW OFFICERS of the Warren Lodge of Moose are Leonard Laufenberger, governor; Eugene Green, jr. governor; Carmen Cardella, prelate; Alfred Schaeffer, sgt. at arms; and Wayne Walters, trustee for three years.

RECOGNIZED for earning senior scholastic honors at the annual Honors Day assembly at Oberlin College on April 25 was Stavroula A. Fanos, a student in the Conservatory of Music from Warren. She was also elected to Pi Kappa Lambda, national music honor society.

CHOSEN as officers for the Warren County Personnel association last week were Carl Pierson, president; Gerald Huber, vice president; Lewis Conroy, secretary and treasurer; Joseph P. Ward, assistant secretary and treasurer; Floyd Reed and Ernest Ellberg, directors for two years.

NEW RATE. Manufacturers Light and Heat Co. will put a new summer air conditioning rate into effect to expand the summer use of gas for cooling and enable the company to get greater summer use of its facilities.

The utility's proposal calls for a flat rate of 45 cents per 1000 cubic feet of gas used for air conditioning during June, July, August and September of each year.

Gas used in this process will be metered separately during this period and billed accordingly.

Television and Radio

By John Crosby

GET ON WITH THE DANCING

Marge and Gower Champion are such a cute young married couple that you can forgive them a great deal and, on their new show, you have to. On their very first show about a month ago, Gower Champion was in a wheelchair auto accident and practically the first line of dialogue was: "It's only a broken toe but being a man he's enjoying every minute of it."

In short, he was the old stereotyped husband - a sort of grownup moron - while his wife was the sweet, competent, mothering angel. (I had just finished reading an article which stated that women complain about minor illnesses seven times more than men. It's articles like that that wreck a comedy writer's repose.) By this time I should think that this kind of comedy writing would not only exasperate all the men in the crowd but all the women as well. It's no accident, after all, that Robert Young of "Father Knows Best", one of the few TV husbands and fathers who were ever allowed to behave like an adult, has won all the prizes recently.

The plot of the first Champion show revolved around the idea of getting Champion out of that wheelchair by various dim witted strategies such as making him jealous of a new partner (Dan Dailey) or arousing his male pride and one thing and another. However, since the first show, Champion has got out of the wheelchair permanently; the pair has resumed dancing and at that they are very expert and winning indeed.

Because of the dancing and because they are such an attractive couple, the Champion show's virtues outweigh its deficits. It is a triumph of personality over some painfully arch script-writing. The other night, for instance, the Champions were supposedly preparing to be on "Eye To Eye", a takeoff on "Person To Person" and before you could say Edward R. Murrow, they were hip deep in plot which involved dressing Jack Whiting up as a comedy gardener and Buddy Rich as a footman out of "Alice In Wonderland."

I don't know what it is about matrimony that sets the comedy writers off into such flights of whimsy. I do have a strong feeling that if marriage gets any more whimsical on television, it's going to give the whole institution a bad name. Young folks who might otherwise be favorably disposed toward matrimony could be touted off it, feeling that, if all the married folks have to behave so itsy-poo, the hell with it.

Sometimes, I think one of the reasons Jack Benny has been so indestructible on radio and television is the fact that he has kept his marriage to Mary Livingston strictly off the show. On the show, he's a bachelor. Another apparently indestructible comedian is Bob Hope who consistently plays the single man, too. On the other hand, look at what is happening to the comedians who have stage wives - Jackie Gleason with his Honeymooners and Sid Caesar with his commutes' sketches. I tell you the married joke is on the way out. (Of course "Lucy" and Gracie Allen seem to be coasting along, all right, but never mind.)

Actually, the Champions, who are fundamentally dancers, are pretty fair raw material as comedians. Marge Champion has a delivery that will remind you of Marie Wilson's - sort of flat and perpetually surprised - and the writers are giving her that sort of line. ("I read our rating in 'TV Guide' - 730" - "That's the time we're on.")

Missy and Half Sizes

AS A BENEFIT for the newly formed Catholic Youth Council, a fish fry was held at St. Joseph's School last Friday evening. Pictured are some of the adults and young people who pitched in to serve several hundred patrons that made the affair a success.

Jack Whiting, who plays the role of father of Marge Champion and manager on the show, is a very talented comedian and dancer and show singer but so far he hasn't had any material to exercise his talent on. Buddy Rich, the drummer, is also on the show and at least once he explodes all over his drums, usually without music. I see no sense to this activity at all.

Just the same I have an idea the Champions will rise above it all. They have youth and good looks and charm and talent and a bundle of assets like that can survive an awful look of whimsy-whimsy.

(By Gerry Archibald)

Basketball officially bowed out for the Church Basketball league last week, when a banquet was held in the Grace Methodist parlors, attended by all participating teams, honoring the league winning Grace Methodist team.

The league was organized this past season for the purpose of giving an opportunity to that group of boys who were not able to make the varsity squad, and also were not advanced enough to play in the 'Y' basketball league. The response of the boys participating, both in their enthusiasm and the improvement in their play through the season, more than paid for the effort expended in organizing and carrying out the program for them.

The Church basketball league not only gave a group of boys the opportunity to play on an organized team in league competition, who might never have had such an opportunity otherwise, but it also gave these boys a chance to learn how to play and work together -- to learn how to lose together as well as win together. It is our feeling that there is nothing like good clean competitive team sport to teach a young boy how to face the battle of life which is ahead of him. If we can learn how to play together, we can learn how to live together.

The Church basketball league has really opened the doors of our church gyms for the first time since they were built. They have been used spasmodically by small groups off and on from year to year, but this is the first time that an organized league has made use of them for play. We feel that this move by the churches is very wise in that it is encouraging the boys to center their play around the church, as well as for worship. It is filling a want for that boy stoked with energy, which just has to burn up in one way or another.

Plans are already forming for a much larger program for the next season. It is expected that at least eight churches will participate in the program and more would be welcome. Efforts will be made to secure all available gyms to be put into use for the program. It has been pointed out that much money was spent in the construction of these gyms, which are now standing idle most of the time. The cost of upkeep for use and non-use is truly incidental.

There is consideration being given to the possibility of forming two leagues, one for the Beaty age boys and another for the senior high group. By organizing in this manner, the boys will be grouped in teams much closer to their own age level, which will give a chance to have much better balance in the teams.

Though the true purpose in the formation of the league has been to provide recreation, and participation in organized team play, the league will undoubtedly develop a lot of potential basketball players who otherwise would have remained dormant. Boys of junior high and even senior high age are still very formative, and though at the time of varsity try-outs, which is a relatively short period, many show little potential. However over the longer period of league play, marked improvement and potential can be noted.

* Many wonder why Meadville dominates sectional play year after year; why Sharon, Farrell and a few others continually dominate the state finals? Why are their boys so much better than ours? The answer is simple. It is not that they have better boys or better coaches. It is the fact that they have long since organized basketball leagues for the boys which reach down into the primary grades in the schools. In Meadville over nine hundred boys are participating in basketball leagues. By the time the boys reach high school they are well schooled in fundamentals and know what to do with a basketball. They are ready material for a coach to shape into a team.

* Interest among the boys is so high in some of the hot basketball towns, that it is now a year around sport with them. Baskets have been erected on hardcourt surfaces at the playgrounds to encourage the boys to participate in their favored sport. Little as we may realize it, basketball is the most universally played team sport. And in most countries in which it is played it is an outdoor sport. It would seem to us that it would be worth the effort to try a couple of outdoor courts in Warren. There is no question that baseball is our favored summertime spectator sport but there are still a lot of boys who do not hold their interest there.

OPENED BY THE PRINCE

The Student Prince will open the opera season for Chautauqua this summer. It will be the 29th season for the Chautauqua Opera association when it starts the music rolling in Norton Hall on July 12. Six operas will be given under the direction of Alfredo Valenti, and all of them will be in English. The others are La Traviata, Carmen, La Boheme, Lucia di Lammermoor, and The Tales of Hoffmann.

Chautauqua's music season will be opened by Marian Anderson on July 1, and will be closed by Jerome Hines, and his company of fifty in "I Am The Way," a religious opera he composed.

Hobby In Wood

Nestled among the hills of the Yule Tree Farm on the Kiantone Road, near Akeley, is a rustic little building known as the Country Garden Shop which is in all reality, the outgrowth of one man's intense interest in the tree business. This interest in the "living tree" began back in 1928 when John H. Stewart, local attorney, was then employed in the Dept. of Forests & Waters.

Now owner of a number of tree farms throughout six different townships in Warren County, Mr. Stewart's interest was stimulated to the point where forest or wood products were also included in his hobby. As a result the Country Garden Shop was "a natural" with the present trend toward outdoor patio living. Here, a hobby was commercialized a bit in order to make readily available to all, the many articles of various woods in rustic, colonial, early American and modern design now on display there.

In visiting this little shop (which is an experience in itself to lovers of fine wood) a stroll over to the nearby lath house will disclose many plants once thought to be unsuitable for our northern climate. One such ornamental is the Ilex opaca, or the American Holly. All experiments of this nature are not successful, as he will tell you, and can become an expensive proposition in that once found not suitable, the Yule Tree Farm immediately rejects the plant from further cultivation. He continues, however to search for those that are unusual.

This tree hobby of his seems to be contagious as is evidenced in not only the daily interest and participation shown by Mrs. Stewart and the three children, but also in the numerous tree farms which have been established throughout the area as a result of helpful advice and genuine interest.

NATIONAL RADIO WEEK

National Radio Week will be observed May 5, through May 11. Radio stations, radio-set manufacturers, retailers and distributors will launch a campaign to create enthusiasm and interest among the general public in the development, growth and exciting new horizons opening for radio.

According to the industry, Americans listen to the radio over 150 million sets. In 1923, there were only one million sets in use.

The first commercial radio station was licensed to broadcast in 1920. In 1945, this number had increased to 972 and today, nearly 3600 AM and FM stations are serving the public.

Ten years ago the number of sets per home averaged 1.6. Today, a 200% increase is claimed with 3 sets per home.

Retail sales of sets, excluding car radios, was highest in history in 1956, with 8,332,077 sold . . . nearly two million more than the previous year. In addition, over 5 million automobile radios were produced in 1956.

Favored locations for radio, in this order, are: cars, living rooms, bedrooms, followed by kitchens and other rooms.

Daytime radio, up to 3 p.m., reaches more than twice as many homes as television (?).

Radio travels with the speed of light . . . 186,000 miles per second.

98.5% of all American homes are equipped with radios, outranking all other household appliances in ratio of ownership . . . 1% ahead of refrigerators, 9% ahead of bathtubs and 16% ahead of telephones.

For every television set there are three radio sets. (But when the family watches TV the odds diminish, as the expenditure of big advertising dollars indicates).

CHANNEL CHAFF

ABC intends to present a new television film series this fall which will be titled, "The Walter Winchell File", produced by Desilu Productions, Inc. And Winchell has said he would withdraw his $7,000,000 breach-of-contract suit against ABC.

Patti Page will hostess a musical program, "The Big Record" for CBS-TV, starting in the fall. It is scheduled for Wednesday nights, 8-9 p.m.

Ford Motor Company is reputedly seeking a replacement for its "Ford Theater" film series produced by Screen Gems and televised by ABC.

Lila Lee, star of silent films, will be back in show business as a result of her appearance April 24 on Ralph Edwards' program "This Is Your Life". Edwards arranged for her to be given roles in five television programs and the producers of the shows were on hand to confirm the assignments. Miss Lee will be seen in "NBC Matinee Theater", "Panic", "Meet McGraw", "Oh Susanna" and "State Trooper".

NOW AND LATER

"Project 20" will repeat three of its top programs within the next two months. Charles Van Doren, of "Twenty-One" fame, will be host and commentator for "Call to Freedom" on Sunday, May 5 (NBC-TV, 4-5:30 p.m.). This is the story of Austria's rebirth of freedom last year. Joseph C. Harsch, Washington commentator for NBC, will preside when "Three, Two, One -- Zero" and "Nightmare in Red" are presented.

(By Gerry Archibald)

To mention the word fish, brings thoughts of a beauty playing on the end of a line and with it will be a story to be told. Or if not a single beauty at least a full basket, the limit no less, is our dream and desire. To others just to be along the banks of a stream with a pole and line is sufficient to satisfy our desires that we might dream away our time.

To a few of us a fish holds an entirely different fascination, which sometimes often grows to that of envy. We like to sit and watch him lazily stirring on the bottom of a pool. What a life! It is our envy! Suddenly he bores of the spot and glides easily through the water and again we envy at his lack of lost motion, the effortless untiring ease with which he moves. Suddenly he hits the surface with open mouth and a portion of his evening meal has been consumed. Again we envy at the ease with which a mere fish can sustain itself, much different than our unhappy lot.

And yet our envy for this thing named fish makes us want to see more of him. Many of us have tried a fish bowl in the house but that is a rather monotonous routine, just round and round a little bowl. Then, too, the atmosphere and envy are gone in the confines of a fish bowl.

Our answer has been in the corner of the garden, where partially shaded by a maple or birch is our fish pool. The surrounding area has been naturalized with stones and planting to give the desired effect. A couple of sawed off logs serve as the stumps, where we may enjoy watching our fish. Water lilies have been added to give cover for the fish as well as add a more attractive setting.

With the coming of spring, to the fish as to most wildlife comes thoughts of reproduction. In this vane our thoughts do not turn to envy. Nonetheless, it is most interesting and fascinating to watch. Water hyacinths are placed in the pool at this time, on which the fish lay their eggs. The hyacinths also act as a cover for the little fish after they are hatched. It is an eye straining process looking for the new hatchlings, which are hair-like in size with two dots for eyes.

It is indeed an interesting process to watch the shaping of the miniature body of a fish from this tiny wiggling hair with two dots for eyes.

When our eyes tire of watching and wondering at the life contained in these tiny bodies, we relax and watch the easy effortless motion of the parent fish. They are neither proud nor concerned about their off-spring, and again we envy.

By fall, this new generation have attained proportions of two to three inches in length and there seems no measure of their energy as they play tag and follow the leader about the pool. The heat of the summer holds no worries for them in their play.

We become envious of them and their comfort in the heat of the day and go off for a swim of our own. And though we find relief and refreshment with the swim, we soon tire with our effort and our envy turns back to those fish in the pool, who are gliding lazily about.

As we sit complacently by the side of our pool, we note that the small fry are also fascinated by that life which lives in the water. We also note that when small friends gather at our house, they can be found by the side of the pool, some wide-eyed, some with that far away look and some just plain looking, but all with a common interest.

To us the pool is the most important part of our garden. We like our tulips, our roses, our phlox and all the rest of the flowers that brighten our picture, and it is among them that we work and give care. When all is said and done it is back to that corner in the garden where our pool lies, where we relax and envy the carefree life of a fish.

That pool with the fish can be yours, too, with not too much effort to build. It can be as simple or as elaborate as you like. It can be in the corner or the center, on the smallest or the largest of lots. It can be made of cement, brick, tile, yes, even plastic if you wish. A plain, placid pool, formal or informal, a fountain or a small water fall operated with a small centrifugal pump. When finished, your labor in that part of the garden is over or practically so; for it is here that we go to sit and watch our fish -- to dream and have envy for no man -- just envy

FEWER TROUT PLANTINGS

Though close to 600,000 brook, brown, and rainbow trout will be placed in approved state waters in the coming weeks, it will be 400,000 short of last season's in-season trout plantings, according to the Pennsylvania Fish Commission. This completes the state's stocking program for the year and represents the loss of sport which fishermen must suffer if funds are not available to do an adequate job. Further reductions will result next year unless additional revenue is made available, says Dewey Sorenson, superintendent of hatcheries.

With the greater proportion of the trout plantings being completed, the Fish Commission is now turning its activity to other game fish, which include smallmouth and largemouth bass, walleyes, northern pike, catfish, crappies, yellow perch and elvers.

Sorenson refrained from naming the areas that would receive the warm water fishes until a determination is made of the success of the netting operations. "Adverse weather and water conditions during the periods when these species are concentrated in areas where they can be netted or trapped, could keep their numbers below what we hope to get. On the other hand, given favorable conditions, we should encounter no difficulty in realizing maximum catches."

SERVICES EXPANDED

William Voight, Jr., executive director of the Commission stated, "The six regional offices, which serve as headquarters for the wardens supervisors and fisheries managers, are now supplied and prepared to answer most of the requests for information, and special permit inquiries, coming from the counties within their respective regions. Prior to this time, these matters were handled at Harrisburg."

Among the matters that can be handled readily by the regional offices are requests in relation to fishing licenses, fishing laws, information on fish and fishing within a region, stream and lake surveys, pollution investigations, bookings for available motion pictures and slide lectures. The regional offices also will handle applications for nets, fish transportation and resale, and commercial hatchery licenses in all categories.

The Northwest Regional Office of the Pennsylvania Fish Commission, which serves Warren County is at Conneautville, Pennsylvania.

Costly Special Favors

By Thomas L. Stokes

WASHINGTON. -- It is getting a little hard to sit here and watch the rape of our natural resources -- and at the expense of us taxpayers.

Which is by way of revealing another hair-curling chapter in the famous Hell's Canyon grab which, you may recall, played so much a part in a Democratic party upsurge in the Pacific Northwest last November which still apparently has had no effect on the Eisenhower Administration.

You are familiar with the first chapter -- how the Eisenhower Administration got the valuable power site at Hell's Canyon on the Snake River along the Idaho-Oregon border handed over to the Idaho Power Company of Augusta, Maine. Fifty years ago this valuable site was set aside by President Theodore Roosevelt, a far-seeing conservationist, so that eventually it might be developed by the government for all the people and to keep it out of the hands of private exploiters which he feared might happen. It has.

The second chapter has to do with approval by Gordon Gray, Defense Mobilizer, of a fast tax write-off for the Idaho Power Company under an emergency law originally enacted to encourage our industry to build war plants and expand capacity for World War II. How this law has been stretched to favor all sorts of business with no real reason in national defense, including utilities, has been explained here before. But this subsidy to a company which represented itself as financially responsible and able to get financing when it got its license from the Federal Power Commission is rather startling, except it is part of the pattern of favoritism to big business to which most of us here have had to become accustomed.

Under terms of the rapid amortization granted to Idaho Power it will be permitted to write off in five years -- at 20 per cent a year -- 65 per cent of the cost of the projected Brownlee Dam and 60 per cent of the cost of the Oxbow Dam, two of the three low-dams it has engaged to build, instead of the one high Federal dam which clearly was favored by a majority of people in the area. The two dams are to cost $103,000,000.

The effect of the "accelerated amortization" in this case will be to reduce very materially the income tax liability of the Idaho Power Company during the five-year write-off period. Its tax savings, which will run into many millions, represent an interest-free loan by the government. The loss of revenue must be made up by the rest of us during the five years the company has the use of its tax-saving for investment or whatever. While it is true that at the end of the five years the corporation's taxable income would be greater in the exact amount by which it was reduced through accelerated amortization, there is a good chance that the corporation tax rate will be reduced by then. Anyhow, the company has the benefit of the tax-free loan.

How this subsidy affects the rest of us as taxpayers and consumers is explained in an analysis of how accelerated amortization works for the building of new plants to be found in the book "Monopoly in America," written by two men who have served as advisors of government agencies and Congressional committees, Dr. Walter Adams, associate professor of economics at Michigan State University, and Dr. Horace M. Gray, professor of economics at the University of Illinois. Of it they say:

"The result is a two-directional subsidy. Non-privileged taxpayers are required to make good the deficiency in the Federal revenue arising from such tax immunity. From this point of view the subsidy takes the form of an interest-free loan from the Treasury in the amount of the tax reductions at compound interest over the normal life of the new plant. The excess depreciation charges over the five-year period constitute a disguised capital levy against consumers to provide part of the capital for the new plant. Thus both taxpayers and consumers are penalized for the benefit of the private monopoly."

Members of Congress from the Pacific Northwest who are complaining bitterly about what Senator Wayne Morse (D., Ore.) called "another shocking betrayal of the public interest" suggest that the company was having difficulty getting its financing and was bailed out by the government with this subsidy.

The accelerated amortization device, which was resorted to in World War II and in the Korean War to induce reluctant industry to expand plant capacity, has been constantly criticized as special privilege. It was called "legalized profiteering" by the Brewster Senate committee of the Republican 80th Congress, 1947-49, and "the biggest bonanza that ever came down the government pike" by the House Government Operations Committee. Just recently an end to it was called for by Senator Harry F. Byrd (D., Va.), Chairman of the Senate Finance Committee, and also by Secretary of Treasury George Humphrey, who termed it "an artificial stimulus of a dangerous type" that favored one group over another.

He got it suspended for a time in certain areas of industry. But it is back again in full flower, as we see.

CARD OF THANKS

I wish to thank everyone for their visits and cards, and many kindnesses during my recent stay in the hospital. Special thanks to the nurses and doctors.

How can I pay for it?

Ask us. It's a question we've answered often by lending to people who have regular jobs and can usually pay their bills without trouble, but who suddenly need more cash than they've got.

If you're in that boat, tell us about it. We make loans for all kinds of useful purposes: medical and hospital expenses, travel, education and many more. And we do it at bank rates that are fair to you, with a repayment schedule that won't be hard for you to meet. Will you come in soon?
